SOLICITING COMMITTEES.

For Expenses of Grand Army Day—Reporters as to Expenses of Arrangements.

There was about the same attendance at the citizens' meeting in the Mayor's office last night as on Friday night, to forward the work of preparation for Grand Army Day, F. M. Hagan, Esq., in the chair. From the committee appointed at the Executive Committee meeting Monday evening Mr. Hagan reported the following as the Finance Committee, to solicit funds required.

It was thought advisable for these committees to begin work as soon as possible and on motion of John W. Parsons, the Secretary was directed to notify all members individually to meet at the Mayor's office next Friday evening.

O. S. Kelly reported from the committee which visited the Fair Grounds yesterday, to examine as to water supply and lighting, that a proposition had been received to tap street mains at two points, lay 1,300 feet of inch pipe therefrom to interior of grounds, set up four troughs, each sixteen feet long, for watering, and put in fourteen faucets for drinking purposes for $51. When it came to lighting the case was more complicated. The Electric Light company were willing to give free use of twenty-five lamps for two nights, ten along main track and entrances and fifteen through the camp, as required, but about two and a half miles of wire would be required, and would have to be purchased at an expense, including putting up, etc., of about $300. Mr. Kelly had some suitable wire on hand and would give its free use so far as it would go.

It looked, from statements made, as though the managers had struck a snag on the last question. The proposition had been all along that there could be had with little trouble, from the government depot at Jeffersonville, but it appears likely, although not certain, that, owing to the amount of red tape required, this is not the case. Col. Kilpatrick and Capt. Putnam were made a committee to investigate the tent question at once and learn the method by which tents were procured at Dayton, last year.

On motion of Mayor Goodwin, chairman of sub-committees were instructed to make estimates of funds required in their respective departments, and report at the meeting of the Executive Committee to be held Wednesday evening (to-night). The meeting then adjourned.

Several matters are dependent upon the settlement of the tent question, as if it becomes necessary to hire the required number from dealers, the total expense of the encampment will be increased by as much.

Horace Greeley.

"Well, well, here is a volume that is becoming quite rare these days," exclaimed a book-worm in a second-hand book store the other day as his eye fell on a new and musty tomo. "What I know about farming," "Well, every body knows this is the book written by Horace Greeley way back in the '60's." Perhaps the rising generation may be excused, as the book is now out of print and will be a curiosity in a half score years hence. At one time it was pretty extensively read. It is difficult to say, however, that much of any benefit was derived from its perusal. "Yes," retorted the party addressed, "Horace was a great man in his time. It is not so very long since he has entered eternity, yet his name is now hardly ever mentioned. It was over this, Man's deeds, be they good or bad, they do not remain long fresh after the author is gone. Occasionally a flash of his wit is repeated, a line from his sayings is borrowed, but it does not induce posterity in the least in remembering much less in reverencing his memory. During the forty odd years that Horace edited the Tribune, every editorial, every farm article, every news item, every commercial paragraph, and every advertisement which appeared in the paper was credited to him by many of his readers and admirers. People forgot, or did not take the time to read, that it was not Horace Greeley, who wrote that or that, but that it was some other man, or some other paper, who wrote it.
